VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of Gazette.

Dear Sir: I wish to sound a note of warning to deer hunters as the open season is close by. I am an old hunter and I know the trouble that can be caused by the careless hunter.

Many a deer, fox and goose have been lost by hunters who are irresponsible and thoughtless people who get to shooting at deer. No one can control a random bullet. A man may shoot at a deer, and the bullet may hit the deer, but it may also hit a man, a woman, a child, or a dog. It is a tragedy that can be avoided by the careful hunter.

Don't allow flies on food or mosquitoes on your person.

Don't fail to obey orders cheerfully and promptly.

Contentment and happiness, he said would follow their observance.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the kind neighbors who have been visiting Chicago friends for their sympathy and beautiful flowers for our late mother during our bereavement.

MUNICIPAL MARKET

IS CERTAIN IN CITY

Carp Will Be Sold at Five Cents a Pound Next Thursday With Seal of Weights and Measures in Charge.

Janesville will have a municipal fish market, which will have fish for sale each week for the public at a fair price, if the present plans of Mayor Fathers materialize.

Arrangements have already been made with the State Council of Defense for the fish to be sold at the market.

The date set for the opening will undoubtedly be on Thursday so that those who wish the fish for Friday will be able to obtain them.

A store will be secured on West Milwaukee street where the market will be established with Seal of Weights and Measures in Charge.

Throughout the entire state where the market have been established in co-operation with the state council of defense the seal of weights and measures of the various cities have always been given.

The first order which the mayor will send for fish will be for five hundred pounds of carp which will be sold at five cents a pound.

Other kinds of fish will be added to the list which will be sold at a reasonable price.

Throughout the state where the council of defense has been supplying fish to the municipal markets the sale of carp has been very large because of the very low price at which they can be obtained.

The fish will be furnished the city at cost more per pound than the carp.

ALSAE, LORRAINE NATIVE PURCHASES LIBERTY BONDS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 25.—Alphonse Schaud, 43, a native of Alsace-Lorraine, was one of the most generous subscribers to the Liberty loan movement here during the last week. Schaud left his home near Strasburg, the east side of the Vosges mountains, and came to Wisconsin in 1881.

When the German-Prussian war in 1871 swept over his own land Schaud was a boy of 16 years.

ROCK COUNTY READY FOR FOOD CAMPAIGN

Pledge Cards Will Be Distributed Among the People of the County by the School Children.

Rock county is preparing for its drive in the food campaign in cooperation with the efforts of Magnus Swenson, federal food administrator for the state of Wisconsin.

The particular drive which is planned has as its object the securing of signatures of the housewives of the county to a pledge which will make them members of the United States food administration.

According to the official information secured from Washington, fifty percent of all the housewives in the country must sign this pledge to conserve foods in order that the plan will be a success.

That will mean that in Rock county 7,000 homes will sign these cards, and in the city of Janesville nearly 10,000 of the pledges must be signed to make the plan a success for the food administration.

These pledge cards and the rules under which the campaign will be launched will reach the housewives through the medium of the school children.

Practically every school child in the county will do its share by giving a blank to take to their home. Special plans will be made to reach those who have no children in the schools so that the number of signatures can be secured.

H. H. Faust, superintendent of schools of this city, has taken three thousand of the cards and will distribute them in the schools. The other high and graded schools in this county will follow the same plan of securing the names of the housewives.

All the county rural school teachers will gather at the high school building on Saturday morning and campaign which will be launched so that they may do their share. They will be given pledge cards at this time to distribute among the farmers.

URGES SOLDIERS TO WATCH THEIR HEALTH

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 25.—Eighty-seven per cent of every 100 American soldiers going to war will return if the soldiers take care of their own health. This is the message of Col. William J. Cronyn, well known army surgeon, to Milwaukee soldiers and their wives.

Col. Cronyn occupies a chair in the Marquette University School of Medicine.

The progress made in the medical and surgical field has done much and will do more to reduce the mortality among soldiers," said the physician when interviewed. "The inoculation actually made that disease almost negligible. Recent discovery revealed that typhoid fever was caused by lice which carry on the germs from one person to another through their bites. This will be greatly lessened by strict sanitary measures.

The large number of casualties caused by the Germans early in the war are being outdistanced by the war are including Americans through experience, he said.

New discoveries were resulting in the pulling through of gangrened limbs, blood poisoning cases, according to Col. Cronyn.

Col. Cronyn specified four don'ts for the guidance of soldiers which are: Don't drink intoxicating liquors. Don't date with strange women. Don't allow flies on food or mosquitoes on your person.

Don't fail to obey orders cheerfully and promptly.

Contentment and happiness, he said would follow their observance.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the kind neighbors who have been visiting Chicago friends for their sympathy and beautiful flowers for our late mother during our bereavement.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

THE NEXT PROBLEM

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, Oct. 26.—The postoffice department and the railroads are co-operating in plans for the prompt handling of an enormous increase in Christmas parcels sent by express.

Postmaster General Otis Praeger, second assistant postmaster general, and W. L. Denning, general superintendent of the railway mail service, have held a conference today.

A general plan, embracing many new features, was adopted for expediting the holiday mail service.

Before returning to Washington, Second Assistant Postmaster General Praeger issued this statement to the public:

"The Christmas season this year will have an added interest for the American people. There will be the usual seasonal greetings and remembrances at home, and in addition, there will be the remembrance of the brave men and women in the army and in the cantonments in this country. The postoffice department will be called upon to handle a large volume of Christmas mailings—one on November 15, for the troops in France and the sailors with the fleet in European waters. The second will be the usual heavy Christmas mailings of men and women at home, and in addition, for the cantonments.

"This 'double Christmas' will develop a great burden on the transportation systems of the country. The quality of the service is not of a high standard, but prices were not materially changed. Pans were well cleared at the finish, as between the packers and country buyers sellers managed to get rid of everything.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $16.80, against $15.60 Wednesday, $16.60 a week ago, $10.00 a year ago and $7.42 two years ago.

It was largely a steady to strong market for hogs yesterday, with the best kinds firmest. The close compared the previous day's early basis except on the common heavy packing stock, which finished weak. Pigs, under improved demand, sold strong to live higher and some reached $14.

Bulk of sales $14.85 to $16.50. Heavy butchers and shipping 16.25 to 16.75. Light butchers, 15.00 to 16.00. Light bacon, 14.50 to 16.50. Heavy packing, 26.00 to 40.00. 14.85 to 15.50.

know the cost of carrying

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Henry King is one of the few screen stars who has done excellent work as an actor and director. His hobby is boating and he has won many new stars since beginning work at the Balboa studios, one of the best known being Ethel Barrymore, who worked opposite him in "The Mainspring." Cullen Landis, a brilliant "juvenile lead," is another King find. Director and Actor King is noted for the rapidity with which he works his most notable feat being the completion of six five-reel features in a little less than six months.

Henry King was born in Christianburg, Virginia, and began his stage career at the age of seventeen, after being graduated from Roanoke College where he made his debut in stock productions. His first screen engagement was with Lubin and shortly afterwards he signed a contract with Balboa. He was immediately featured in "Who Pays," which established him as a screen actor. His direction of the "Mary Sunshine" series brought him into fame as a director.

HOOVERIZING
This is told as a true story. A big production company wanted to make a ten-reel production of a western story adopted from a well known novel. A director was given an all-star cast and assigned to the task. When the picture was finally completed and submitted to the producers there was a genuine indoor riot. The piece was "that" bad there was no chance to use it. But did the company discard the film altogether? Not in this day of economy! It was reassembled, with the result that one five-reel feature, replete with thrills, and one two-reel "comedy" and one single-reel comedy were offered for sale. The remaining two reels were saved for a "retake" of the original story.

scenario adopted from Holgar Drachman's "Once Upon a Time," to which she secured the world's film rights some time ago. When Miss Neilson was a member of the Royal Theater company in Copenhagen she played the role of the Princess in this fairy play.

Sidney Drew, who appears with his wife in weekly comedies, claims to be the first actor to present legitimate drama in vaudeville. For four years he toured the big cities in "Billy's Tombstones," a most entertaining play.

MYERS THEATRE.

To the optimist every day ends perfectly, for he expects a smile in it. To the youth who is in love, the end of a day is perfect when he can see his sweetheart! To the traveler and toiler in the mills, it is perfect when they can be in the bosom of their families; and the bachelor who is satisfied, contented and believes the world is perfect when he can be at his favorite club or among his chosen friends. But any day can be perfect with scenes of joy and laughter and the thoughts of love whether it be for the wife, sweetheart, or our fellow-men.

Howard McKent Barnes, a young playwright of Chicago, in his latest offering, "The End of a Perfect Day," found a solution to the ever-present problem of what is really the end of a perfect day. When his new play, "The End of a Perfect Day," is presented at the Myers theatre next Saturday Oct. 27, matinee and night, all lovers of rollicking fun will have an opportunity to judge Mr. Barnes' decision, and that in a smile is worth ten frowns.

One of the leading characters in "The End of a Perfect Day" is a little Irish girl of seventeen, who knows very little about love, and this serves as a theme for the most delightful comedy in which she involves all the characters of the play. There are rollicking scenes of humor from beginning to end that no one will fail to enjoy. You will remember the hearty laughs in "Kalamazoo," the Golden Gals, which Messrs. Gabekl and MacVitty gave us this season. This time they have chosen England for their scene and the good old U. S. has not been neglected. Mr. Barnes spent several months in England, so his characters are true to life.

MYERS THEATRE.

"A Soldier's Bride" Company. To see a musical comedy now days with a plot is a rare thing, as most musicals shows feature a girls' chorus and that let them out. "A Soldier's Bride" company features a chorus of twenty-five beautiful and shapely, fresh, and competent girls. These girls were not engaged only on account of their looks, but each one has to pass on her ability as a singer and dancer. The costumes worn by these young ladies are all of the latest design of Mlle. Duval, there being twelve changes for each of the girls.

There is a pretty story running all through the play, woven around the nuptials of one of our Sammies and the girl of his choice and heart. It is effective and highly melodic musical comedy. Harry Stewart will be seen in the leading role, supported by such well known stars as Jane West, Flo Kennedy, Vesta Gould, William Koud and Al Dover. "A Soldier's Bride" will appear at the Myers theatre Sunday, matinee and night, Oct. 28.

Janesville Physician Surprised.

"Hearing of some good results from the use of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy I decided to try it on a chronic case of indigestion and gastritis I was interested in. After the first dose the patient was relieved of gas trouble and was soon able to eat radishes and most everything else he had not eaten in years. It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at J. P. Baker's Drug Store, Advertisement."

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles. If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with indigestion, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without gripping, cramps or pain. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. 4c, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Beyond the Frontier

A Romance of Early Days in the Middle West

Author of "Kelt of the Border," "My Lady or Doubt," "The Maid of the Forest," etc.

Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co.

What followed is to me a delirium of fever, and remains in memory indistinct and uncertain. I reached out and touched Barbeau: I heard the sudden roar of D'Artigny's voice, the sharp report of the soldier's rifle. The flame cut the dark as though it were the blade of a knife, and in the swift red glare, I saw a savage throw up his arms and fall headlong. Then all was chaos, confusion, death. Nothing touched me, not even a gripping hand, but there were Indian shots, giving me glimpses of the hellish scene, of naked bodies, long, waving hair, eyes mad with terror, and red arms brandished, the rifles they bore shining in the red glare.

I saw Barbeau grip his gun by the barrel and strike as he ran. Again and again it felt crunching against flesh. A savage hand slatted at him with a gleaming knife, but I struck the red man with my pistol butt, and the Indian fell flat, leaving the way open. We dashed through, but Barbeau grasped me, and thrust me ahead.

I Saw Barbeau Grip His Gun by the Barrel and Strike.

of him, and whirled about, with uplifted rifle to aid D'Artigny, who faced two warriors, naked knife in hand.

"Run, madame, for the fort," he shouted above the uproar. "To my help, Barbeau!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

Within the Fort.

I doubt if I paused a second, yet that was enough to give me glimpse of the wild scene. I saw D'Artigny lunge with his knife, a huge savage reeling beneath the stroke, and Barbeau cleave passage to the rescue, the stock of his gun shattered as he struck fiercely at the red devils who blocked his path.

Outnumbered, helpless for long in that narrow space, their only hope lay in a sortie by the garrison, and it was my part to give the alarm. Even as I sprang forward, a savage leaped from the rock, but I escaped his hand, and raced up the dark trail, the one thought urging me on. God knows how I made it—to me 'tis but a memory of falls over unseen obstacles, of reckless running; yet the distance could have been scarce more than a hundred yards, before my eyes saw the dark shadow of the stockade outlined against the sky.

Crying out with full strength of my voice, I burst into the little open space, then tripped and fell just as the gate swung wide, and I saw a dozen dark forms emerge. One leaped forward and grasped me, lifting me partly to my feet.

"Mon Dieu! a woman!" he exclaimed in startled voice. "What means this, in heaven's name?"

"Quick!" I gasped, breaking away, able now to stand on my own feet. "They are fighting there—two white men—D'Artigny—"

Come with me, you others."

They swept past me, the leader well in advance. I felt the rush as they passed, and had glimpse of vague figures as they disappeared in the darkness. Then I was alone, except for the bearded soldier who grasped my arm.

"Who was that?" I asked, "the man who led?"

"Boisronnet, Francois de Boisronnet."

"An officer of La Salle's? You, then, are of his company?"

"I am," a bit proudly, "but most of the lads yonder belong with De Baugis. Now we fight a common foe, and forget our own quarrel. Did you say Rene d'Artigny was in the fighting yonder?"

"Mon Dieu! a Woman!"

"Yes; he and a soldier named Barbeau."

The fellow stood silent, shifting his feet.

"Twas told us he was dead," he said finally, with effort. "Some more of La Barre's men arrived three days ago by boat, under a popinjay they call Cassion to recruit De Baugis' forces. De la Durantaye was with him from the portage, so that now they outnumber us three to one. You know this Cassion, madame?"

"Ay, I traveled with his party from Montreal."

"Ah, then you will know the truth, no doubt. De Tonty and Cassion were at swords' points over a charge the latter made against Rene d'Artigny—that he had murdered one of the party at St. Ignace."

"Hugo Chevet, the fur trader."

"Ay, that was the name. We of La Salle's company know it to be a lie, madame! I have served with that lad two years, and 'tis not in his nature to knife any upon the back. And so De Tonty said, and he gave Cassion the lie straight in his teeth. I heard their words, and but for De

The End Of Your Corns

Pain Stops at Once—Corn Lifts Off Clean.

There is nothing in the world like "Gelsin" for corns. Just apply it according to directions, the pain stops at once and the corn lifts off as clean as a whistle. No fuss, no bother, no danger. "Gelsin," you know, is safe. Millions have used it, more than all other corn remedies combined, and it never fails.

Don't Waste Time "Hollering." "Gelsin" Never Fails.

There is no need for you to go through another day of corn agony. But be sure you get "Gelsin." Accept nothing else, for remember, there is positively nothing else as good. "Gelsin" never irritates the live flesh, never makes the toe sore.

You can go about as usual with work or play, while "Gelsin" does all the work. Then the corn peels right off like a banana skin, and leaves the toe as smooth and corn-free as your palm. Never happened before, did it? Guess not.

Get a bottle of "Gelsin" today from any drug store; you need pay no more than 25c, or sent on receipt of price by Dr. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Janesville and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Smith Drug Co., McCue & Buss, J. P. Baker, W. T. Sherer.

Baugis and De la Durantaye, Francois Cassion would have paid well for his false tongue. Now you can tell him the truth."

"I shall do that, but even my word, I fear, will not clear D'Artigny of the charge. I believe the man to be innocent; in my heart there is no doubt, yet there is so little to be proven."

"Cassion speaks bitterly; he is an enemy."

"Monsieur Cassion is my husband," I said regretfully.

"Your pardon, madame. Ah, I understand it all now. You were supposed to have been drowned in the great lake, but were saved by D'Artigny. 'Twill be a surprise for Monsieur, but in this land, we witness strange things. Mon Dieu! see, they come yonder; 'tis Boisronnet and his men."

They approached in silence, mere shadowy figures, whose numbers I could not count, but those in advance bore a helpless body in their arms, and my heart seemed to stop its beating, until I heard D'Artigny's voice in cheerful greeting.

"What, still here, madame, and the gate beyond open?" He took my hand and lifted it to his lips. "My congratulations: your work was well done, and our lives thank you. Madame Cassion, this is my comrade, Francois Boisronnet, whose voice I was never more glad to hear than this night. I commend him to your mercy."

Boisronnet, a mere shadow in the night, swept the earth with his hat. "I mind me the time," he said courteously, "when Rene did me equal service."

"The savages have fled?"

"Twas short and sweet, madame, and those who failed to fly are lying yonder."

"Yet some among you are hurt?"

"Barbeau hath an ugly wound—ay, bear him along, lads, and have the cut looked to—but as for the rest of us, there is no serious harm done."

I was gazing at D'Artigny, and marked how he held one hand to his side.

"And you, monsieur; you are unscathed?"

"Except for a small wound here, and a head which rings yet from savage blows—no more than a night's rest will remedy. Come, madame, 'tis time we were within, and the gates closed."

"Is there still danger, then? Surely now that we are under protection there will be no attack?"

"Not from those we have passed, but 'tis told me there are more than a thousand Iroquois warriors in the valley, and the garrison has less than fifty men, all told. It was luck we got through so easily. Ay, Boisronnet, we are ready."

That was my first glimpse of the interior of a frontier fort, and, although I saw only the little open space lighted by a few wavering torches, the memory abides with distinctness. A body of men met us at the gate, dim, indistinct figures, a few among them evidently soldiers from their dress, but the majority, clothed in the ordinary garb of the wilderness. Save for one Indian squaw, not a woman was visible, nor did I recognize a familiar face, as the fellows, each man bearing a rifle, surged about us in noisy welcome, eagerly questioning those who had gone forth to our rescue. Yet we were scarcely within, and the gates closed, when a man pressed his way forward through the throng, in voice of authority bidding them stand aside. A blazing torch cast its red light over him, revealing a slender figure attired in frontier garb, a dark face, made alive by a pair of dense brown eyes, which met mine in a stare of surprise.

"Back, safe, Boisronnet," he exclaimed sharply, "and have brought in a woman. 'Tis a strange sight in this land. Were any of our lads hurt?"

"None worth reporting, monsieur. The man they carried was a soldier of M. de la Durantaye. He was struck down before we reached the party. There is an old comrade here."

"An old comrade! Lift the torch, Jacques. Faith, there are so few left I would not miss the sight of such a face."

He stared about at us, for an instant uncertain; then took a quick step forward, his hand outstretched.

"Rene d'Artigny," he cried, his joy finding expression in his face. "Ay, an old comrade, indeed, and only less welcome than M. de la Salle himself. 'Twas a bold trick you played tonight, but not unlike many another I have seen you venture. You bring me message from monsieur?"

"Only that he has sailed shrewdly for France to have audience with Louis. I saw him aboard ship, and was bidden to tell you to bide here in patience and seek no quarrel with De Baugis."

"Easy enough to say; but in all truth I need not seek quarrel—it comes my way without seeking. De Baugis was not so bad—a bit high strung, perhaps, and boastful of his rank, yet not an ill a comrade—but there is a newcomer here, a popinjay named Cassion, with whom I cannot abide. Ah, but you know the beast, for you journeyed west in his company. Sacre! the man charged you with murder, and I gave him the lie to his teeth. Not two hours ago we had our swords out, but now you can answer for yourself."

D'Artigny hesitated, his eyes meeting mine.

"I fear, the answer may not be so easily made. If it were point of sword, now, I could laugh at the man, but he possesses some ugly facts difficult to explain."

"Yet 'twas not your hand which did the deed?"

"I pledge you my word to that. Yet this is no time to talk of the matter. I have wounds to be looked to, and would learn first how Barbeau fares. You know not the lady; but of course not, or your tongue would never have spoken so freely—Monsieur de Tonty, Madame Cassion."

He straightened up, his eyes on my face. For an instant he stood motionless; then swept the hat from his head, and bent low.

"Your pardon, madame; we of the wilderness became rough of speech. I should have known, for a rumor had reached me of your accident. You owe life, no doubt, to Sieur d'Artigny."

"Yes, monsieur; he has been my kind friend."

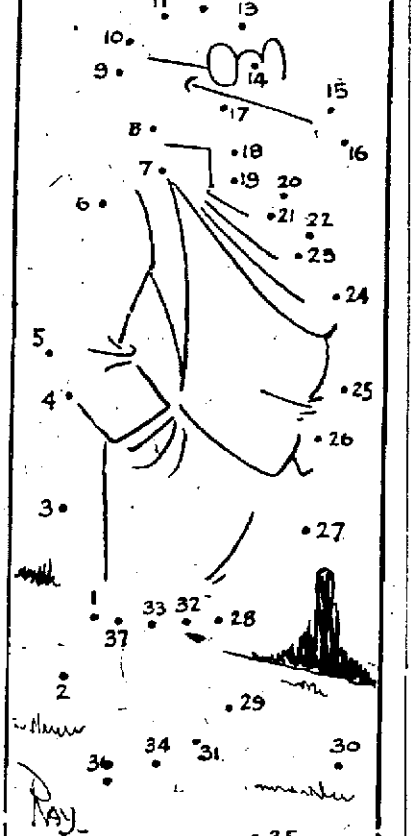

"He would not be the one I love else. We know men on this frontier, madame, and this lad hath seen years of service by my side." His hand rested on D'Artigny's shoulder.

"'Twas only natural, then, that I should resent M. Cassion's charge of murder."

"I share your faith in the innocence of M. d'Artigny," I answered firmly enough, "but beyond this assertion I can say nothing."

"Naturally not, madame. Yet we must move along. You can walk, Rene?"

Doctor (upon finding his patient weaker than before): "What does this mean? Haven't you been following my instructions?"

Patient (feebly): "Yes, doctor. Doctor—been eating animal food right along, have you?"

Patient (grinning, trying to smile): "Well, doctor, I tried to, but somehow it did not seem to agree with me very well. I managed to worry down the hay and the clover tops all right, but the thistles kind of stuck in my throat and I had to give it up."

While on a walking tour a gentleman discovered a rustic patriarch seated at the roadside.

"Don't plow it," said the old man. "When the thaws come the rocks rolling downhill tear it up so that we can plant corn."

"And how do you plant it?" asked the traveler.

"Don't plant it really," said the old man. "We stand at the back door and shoot the seed in with a shotgun."

OLD LOOKS

(By Dr. N. B. Cook.)

Persons suffering from too much uric acid in the system frequently look older than they should. They age faster and the appearance of gray hair or baldhead in early years is, indeed, often a sign of uric acid. The face appears lean and haggard, lines and wrinkles appearing in young men or women.

The best way to combat this premature age and the obstruction to the arteries and faulty circulation is of the simplest. Drink copiously of pure water between meals. Obtain at any drug store a small package of Anuric which is to be taken before meals from the system. The painful effects of backache, lumbago, rheumatism, gout, due to uric acid in the blood should quickly disappear after treatment with Anuric.

"Windpipe? H'm. What's my windpipe?"

"Don't you know what your windpipe is?" broke in the six-year-old brother. "Why, that's where your smoke comes from on cold days."

A MOTHER'S WISDOM.

Stevens Point, Wis.—"I have been greatly benefited by the use of Dr. Pierce's medicines. The favorite prescription cured me of a very bad case of womanly weakness. I have also taken it at different times when I would not feel well and it always fixed me up in fine shape. I have given 'Golden Medical Discovery' to my son; he was all run down in health and it cured him in just a short space of time. I have also used the 'Pleasant' Pellets and they are equally as good. These medicines have been used in our family for many years. I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's remedies."—Mrs. Elvira Richardson, 223 Madison Street.

RUNNER MCGEE

(Who had "Return if Possible" Orders.)

"You've heard a good deal of the telephone wires," he said as we sat at our ease.

And talked of the struggle that's taking place in these terrible days over the seas.

"But I've been through the thick of the thing and I know the moment a battle's begun.

It isn't the phone you depend on for help. It's the legs of a boy who can run.

"It isn't because of the phone that I'm here. Today you are talking to me. Because of the grit and the pluck of a boy. His title was Runner McGee.

We were up to our dead line and fighting alone, some plan had miscarried. I guess.

And the help we were promised had failed to arrive. We were showing all signs of distress.

"Our curtain of fire was ahead of us still, and theirs was behind us and thick.

An' there wasn't a thing we could do for ourselves—the few of us left had to stick.

You haven't much chance to get central an' talk on the phone to the music of the guns.

Gettin' word to the chief is a matter right then that is up to the fellow who runs.

"I'd send four of 'em back with the R. I. P. sign, which means to return if you can.

But none of 'em got through the curtain of fire; my hurry call died with the man.

Then Runner McGee said he'd try to get through. I said to order the man on his mission of death; thought he'd never get by, but somehow or other he did.

"Yes he's dead. Died an hour after bringing us word that the chief was aware of our plight.

An' for us to hang on to the ditch that we held, the reserves would relieve us at night.

Then we stuck to our trench an' we stuck to our guns. You know how you'll fight when you know.

That's the strength in coming to all up the guns. There's heart in the force of your blow.

"It wasn't till later I got all the facts. They wanted McGee to go in.

They begged him to stay. He had cheated death once an' was foolish to try it again!

R. I. P. are my orders, he answered them at, an' back to the boys I must go.

Four of us did comin' out with the news. It will help them to know that you know."

CAMP GRANT HAS EXCELLENT "CHUCK"

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Camp Grant, Ill., Oct. 26.—"Soup—soup—soup, without a single bean; pork—pork, without a drop of fat; coffee, coffee, coffee, without a drop of cream." Soldiers now, as in the past, greet this bugle call with more enthusiasm than any other. As in former days, it means "quality." The old "boys in blue" called it grub, but the boys in olive drab of today have borrowed a term from the plains and call the total assortment "chuck."

Mess call today, however, does not bring to the mind of the soldier the same picture it did in former days. There is raised in the mind of the old soldier a picture of beans—heaped rich and brown, on a tin plate of beans soft and mushy and flavored with bacon grease, or perhaps of a thin, greasy soup with a few beans floating in it. The soldier today couples mess call with all kinds of vegetables except beans. There are few menus in the army messes today in which will be found that chief article of the diet, the bean.

The American soldier today does not eat them because they cost too much. Beans today are a luxury and are thirteen and fourteen cents a pound. As to the officers' messes, they are agreed, the prohibitive cost of beans, both mess officers and soldiers are agreed, the latter because they have learned that they have to agree to the mandates of the mess officer. He is a czar in his domain.

The story is told of one soldier, who had served in the old days on the plains and who was made quartermaster, or mess sergeant, of one of the army companies of the national army. He went to the first sergeant and reported: "Top, we have not got enough vegetables." Now, every soldier is allotted so much vegetables a day, the total allotment of food for the day being called a ration. Any shortage or reduction in the ration is a serious matter. The first sergeant was instantly aroused. "What do you mean," he asked, "beans, sir?"

The Q. M. replied: "Have you gone to the quartermaster?" The sergeant inquired. The Q. M. replied that he had and the first sergeant said: "Go until you get them." Now, the sergeant, the Q. M. to repeat his former visit, but to the old Q. M. the order meant to go higher up, and orders to him were: "Get them." He went to the quartermaster in succession, but did not get the beans. Finally, he entered the quarters of the commanding general. "Well, what do you want," the general inquired. "Beans, sir," replied the Q. M. respectfully but firmly and persistently to the astonished general. Explanations were in order. To the credit of a general and the joy of the mess, a barrel of beans was sent with the mess the faithful Q. M. represented.

Another story going the rounds is of an old veteran who viewed the confection of the graduates of the army school for bakers with grave doubts. The bill of fare was not in the least like that on which he had been fed for years. Beans were placed before him, served in style the way he had dismissed their identity. Suddenly he looked up from his plate and blurted out: "By G—, they are beans!" The expression has been placed on the records of his regiment.

Camp Grant, Ill., Oct. 26.—"You can go where you please, you can shin up the trees, but you can't get away from the gun."

Squatting in the saddle behind the new model Colt automatic machine guns, the men of the machine company of the 31st infantry regiment, the organization to receive the "chuck" that Kipling's lines apply with absolute truth to the imaginary Boches that they see before them in an imaginary "No-man's land."

The gunner pulls the trigger. With a staccato stutter, appalling in its pure viciousness, a stream of leaden missiles, 700 leaden missiles, 700 per minute, pours from the mouth of the gun and the gunners grit their teeth and grin with deadly satisfaction as they think what the result will be when they win the "little black devil" on an advancing German column.

Forty-six of the guns have been received at the camp thus far, according to Major Alexander G. Gillespie, in charge of the department of the army. They will be distributed to the various companies this week. As yet only four of the guns have been allotted, these going to the 31st infantry machine gunners, Captain Perry D. Smith, commanding.

The new guns are the last word in rapid fire death dealers. The model is entirely new, and the weapons which have been delivered to the Camp Grant companies are the first of this design produced by the famous Colt works. They are built for either air or water cooling and are exceptionally light in weight. Finished in a dull, business-like black, the new machine guns give an impression of deadly concentration of power and effectiveness.

With the distribution of the guns among the various regimental and battalion machine gun companies, the specialized work of training the embryo gunners will be started in earnest. As this training is very different from that given the infantrymen, special courses will be pursued by these men. The new gunners will be required to learn not only the operation of the weapon, but will have to be able to take it apart and re-assemble it in the dark put it in operation again after it has jammed, and locate and repair broken parts in a minimum of time.

GAMES ON SATURDAY IN CONFERENCE WILL NOT EFFECT LEADERS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Chicago, Oct. 26.—Harrowing upsets the football games on Saturday (Oct. 27) will probably have little additional effect upon the race for championship honors in the "Big Ten." Illinois and Ohio State, whose records to date entitle them to most consideration for the title, will play Purdue and Denison, respectively, and the past performance of these opponents put the contests in the "hard practice games" category.

Chicago and Michigan have difficult contests in sight with Northwestern and Nebraska, but the optimism of Stagg's followers do not predict the championship for the Maroons despite their defeat of Purdue and Vanderbilt, while Michigan's sole conference game this year will be with Northwestern.

The Chicago-Northwestern clash will be a grudge fight and will probably bring out more of the individualistic "college color" than most of the season's contests. War time economies in athletic management and on the part of the individual students and the custom of "pulling out" for the games with but the encouraging songs and shouts of their partisans. The Northwestern student body, however, can reach Stagg's field on massed street marches from their home campus at Evanston, and the Purple and Maroon cohorts, consequently, are expected to stage one of their old time scenes of rivalry.

Last year Northwestern, with a team that ran second to Ohio State for conference honors, defeated Chicago for the first time in fifteen seasons. This year many of the veterans of the 1916 season will again play at Evanston, while Chicago will present as a "green" line-up as it has had since 1897, when only two men on the Maroons—Captain Cherscherger—had sliding as "vets."

The Nebraska-Michigan game is arousing considerable interest, not only because the standard of the contest, in some degree, the real strength of Yost's eleven and thus indicate its chances in the coming games with Cornell and Pennsylvania. These two future contests and the Notre Dame-Army game at West Point Nov. 3 will comprise the important east versus west clashes of 1917 and serve to illuminate what promises to be otherwise a rather drab season.

Nebraska will start a fast, powerful team at Ann Arbor, an eleven which started well and kept up its good work by defeating Notre Dame last Saturday. Michigan will be in its first acid test of the year.

The other "Big Ten" game on the list is the Iowa-Wisconsin clash at Madison. Iowa has met with only small success thus far, but the team is plucky and it fights enough to give the Badgers a scare or even win. Wisconsin may well be expected to be a bit of an edge after last Saturday's game against Illinois by the narrow margin of one touchdown. The defeat, however, may have done the team a world of good inasmuch as it contains several players of limited experience who have needed a hard fight to bring them up to Wisconsin standard. There is no question but that the eleven fought through a last minute of play and in that respect, at least, upheld its school's traditions.

Two of the "Big Ten"—Minnesota and Indiana—have no games scheduled for this week. They have been putting in the time recovering from the effects of their meeting at Minneapolis on Oct. 20 and getting ready for their games on Nov. 3, when the Gophers will take on their traditional arch-enemy, Wisconsin, and Indiana will try to stop Ohio State's march toward another championship.

Notre Dame expects a hard fight with South Dakota at South Bend, basing this expectation on previous experience with that team. The visitors usually turn out sturdy eleven and this year's aggregation is said to be no exception to the rule. While

WILL PLAY MONROE ON COMING SATURDAY

High School Team Is Working Hard to Retrieve Themselves for the Two Defeats Already Suffered

In spite of the two defeats handed them on the last two Saturdays, the local high school football team goes forth tomorrow with renewed energy to battle against one of the strongest opponents they have encountered this season. Monroe, the team in mention, is an eleven classed with Edgerton and Beloit in the football world, and if defeated will have added to its record of confidence to the local team when they march forth against Edgerton on November 10.

The backfield, the target of the Jefferson warriors, is being given special attention and men of the right calibre are being substituted for those who could not do the work required of them in the position they formerly held. Although "Mike" Powers, Janesville star quarterback, will be unable to play in tomorrow's game, Coach Phillips believes he will have a man in this position that will assure the team of no weakness at this point.

Every afternoon this week, rain or snow, found the boys out, rolling around in the snow and mud, with flinching an inch, in an effort to get in much practice as possible before tomorrow's game. All realize the strength of the Monroe team and every man is doing his utmost, in preparation for one of the fastest games of the season.

The game will be played on the Monroe gridiron. A game has been secured with Waukesha high school for November 3, the only date of the season which had not been filled.

MINOR LEAGUE MEN WILL GO TO MAJORS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Detroit, Oct. 26.—There is a well grounded belief in local baseball circles that many names of ball players familiar in minor leagues will appear in major league box scores next season. It is known that big league managers have generally agreed that they will be obliged to draw heavily on class AA organizations next year on account of the war. Every team in the National and American leagues will suffer from the selective draft and some clubs, among them Cleveland, will be hit unusually hard.

While no official announcement has been made, it is quite clearly understood that major league clubs have reached a tentative understanding with minor organizations regarding the purchase of veteran players next spring. This, it is explained, will give financial assistance to the minor league clubs and also enable them to reduce salary lists. At any rate there will be baseball, leaders believe.

The American association and International league, for instance, have a number of players who are only a few strides short of major league ability. Others, like Larry Lajoie, have been sensations in class AA circuits this season and will undoubtedly be returned to faster company. "The pennant race is the thing," seems to be the slogan of baseball men. Shorter seasons and hotter races are considered by many as the solution of the baseball war time problem. Therefore, it is argued, enthusiasts would be better satisfied with a slightly inferior grade of team play if major league clubs were well balanced. Nothing is more injurious to baseball, they hold, than run-away pennant races.

NOW PLAYING TWENTIETH YEAR ON FOOTBALL FIELD

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 26.—Twenty years of football, and a star every season, is the unusual record of "Bob" Marshall, colored, one time end on the University of Minnesota eleven and now a member of a local semi-professional team holding the championship of the northwest. Marshall was a member of the Gopher team in '04, '05 and '06. Probably the outstanding feat in his career was the kicking of a field goal in a game with Chicago in 1906. His toe gave the Gophers a 1 to 3 victory.

Marshall played his first football game in 1897 as a member of the Minneapolis Central high school team. Since leaving college he has played as a semi-professional. Because the forward passing is harder on ends than the old style, Marshall wears stiff wrapping around his ribs. He is 35 years old.

MORRIS MILLER

A story is told of Joe Doyle, nicknamed "Slow Joe" because of the length of time it took him to deliver a ball to a batter, and who pitched for the Yankees some years ago. Joe didn't last very long, but at least he lasted long enough to make one quaint observation that will long be remembered. It seems that Doyle was pitching in a game on the Hilltop, shortly after joining the club, in which the Yankees were opposed by the Tigers, and Ty Cobb came to bat with two on and two out at a critical stage of the game.

The Yankee catcher walked out to Doyle and said: "Better pass this guy." "Pass him?" asked Doyle, who either did not know Cobb or was possessed of a world of confidence. "Why not strike him out?"

And, by the gods, that's exactly what he did!

After finishing their series for the championship of Ohio the Cincinnati Reds and the Cleveland Indians journeyed to Camp Sherman, near Chillicothe, O., and there played an exhibition for the edification of several thousand soldiers. Cleveland won the game, 3 to 1. The Reds, however, have a good alibi. With Cincinnati at bat in its half of the ninth, a runner on third and Chase at bat, the supply of balls ran out, and the game was called. The clubs had brought along plenty of balls—they thought—but when 30,000 soldiers began to grab foul balls and hit into the crowd the supply was exhausted. It is said a trunk full of balls was used in the game—the soldiers got them all and the players were lucky to get away with their gloves.

A good many wagers were laid in St. Louis on whether Sisler or Hornsby would do the best hitting in the recent city series. Sisler's backers won. Though suffering from a lame wrist and playing against the advice of the doctor treating him, Sisler hit for an even .300 in the seven games, while Hornsby registered an average of but .222. Earl Smith and Gerber were the best hitters for the Browns, hitting .300 and .280, respectively, while Jacobson, who went to bat but seven times, being used chiefly as a pinch hitter. Long and Miller did the hitting for the Cardinals. The Browns batted an average as a team of but .225, while the Cardinals hit for 258 against American league pitching. But the great weakness of the Browns was in their fielding, in which they made a miserable showing.

Sam Crawford has finished his major league career with the Detroit Tigers. It has been generally understood that "Wahoo Sam" was resigned to quitting the big leagues and playing for a time with some club in the Pacific Coast league. As the time to say farewell approached Sam began to feel differently about leaving the big show. He believes that if he could be played regularly he would hit much better than he has done during the latter part of his sojourn at Detroit when used as a substitute. Crawford always has kept himself in the best physical condition and he says his eye is as keen as ever. He has been highly successful in his profession, and he hates to get away from the big leagues. It is possible that some club will pick up the veteran.

Football, even on a reduced scale, should be revived by Harvard and Yale this fall. There is no good reason why they should not meet on the gridiron in a struggle for "informal" honors and for the benefit of the Red Cross. Other leading football institutions have taken the field in spite of weakened elevens. Many star players are in the army and navy, so that it is possible to arrange some highly interesting battles before the snow begins to fly. Football is a man's game. It makes good soldiers. For that excellent reason it should be played all over the country.
